Who We Are

NCASCD is a diverse community of educators who advocate excellence in curriculum, teaching and learning for all learners. A long established, well organized association, NCASCD is the premier organization which cuts across job titles in enlisting all categories of educators in the improvement of educational opportunities for children. The resulting synergy ignites a common goal-the best interest of students everywhere. This vantage point is the foundation for NCASCD's long standing reputation as a prime source for critical thinking and unbiased information about education.

What We Do

NCASCD is the state's most visible association in promoting quality curriculum and instruction that impacts the learning of students K-12. This is accomplished by timely conferences on critical issues, fall and spring seminars in each of the eight regions, publications, occasional papers and policy briefs on current concerns in education, collaborating with other groups whose aim is improved instructional practices and promoting legislative action on items that enhance the quality of teaching and learning in North Carolina.

How We Partner With International ASCD

NCASCD is an independent state unit affiliated with International ASCD through a compatible constitution and participation in the governance of ASCD through membership on its Board of Directors. Since its inception in 1943, ASCD has faced the challenge, unique among major education groups, of a membership base with an extensive variety of concerns and interests. The educational professionals and students who comprise the ASCD family often have compelling needs and perspectives. Yet, ASCD's multi-million budget enables the association to provide quality service to all its members despite the continual expansion of that base. ASCD's overarching belief that all students can succeed in a challenging, well-planned educational program is shared by nearly 200,000 members worldwide.
